It is to be hoped that we shall speedily reach bottom in the present depression and that with the inauguration of the new administration will come restored confidence and more prosperous days.

The paragraph in the message of Governor Hill, of New York, that "not an official of the State of New York has been guilty of any defaleation or maleonduct in office during the past year," is significant and illustrates the rigid honesty of the administration of Governor Cleveland.

The Senate of Alabama has passed a bill prohibiting speculation in futures and prescribing penalties for a violation of the law. One section of the measure declares contracts for future deliveries of declares contracts for future deriveries or grain, cotton, meal, stocis, bonds or any commodity or produce whatsoever, void and not payable. The act was passed only after much discussion and its fate in the House is uncertain

He came to this country in 1869, and began his labors in the diocese of Detroit. Tim New York World says: It is needless to review Grover Cleveland's acts as Governor when they have just received so signally the approval of the nation. It is sufficient to say that the qualities he displayed as executive of the State—his steadfast adherence to the public interests, his contempt of the acts of the demagogue, his fearless championship of popular rights, his unyieldings incorruptibility, his plain truthfulness, and withal his sterling Democracy—were his passports to the favors of the people all over the union.

The New York World says: The Ohio Legislature has adopted a joint resolu-tion providing for the placing of a statue of William Allen in the Capitol Pan-theon in Washington. William Allen was the Vinginia saddler's apprentice who rose to the United States Senate and who was called to the Gubernatorial chair, after years of retiracy from politics, when the Democrats of Ohio were well-nigh without a leader and an organization. He was a contemporary of Andrew Jackson. His life was pure, his aims were lofty and the American Republic never had a more sincere friend.

Opera Company. He is known to the profession as the "millionaire manager." The following concerning the Frohman will case, in which some of our citizens are interested as heirs, is from the Louisville Argus: The much ventilated Frohman will case has assumed a new phase, consequent upon the advent of another heir in the shape of a pothumous son of the late Solomon Frohman. It will be remembered that in the divorce suit against his wife, Frohman charged her with conspiracy to take his life. Death put an end to the divorce suit, and after that event a will was found, which devised his large estate to his relatives, cutting his wife off with a dollar. This was contested by the wife, who claimed her dower rights. The matter has been dragging on in the courts for some time, but a few weeks ago Mrs. Frohman claimed to have given birth to a child by her deceased husband, and she has named it Solomon White Frohman. Mr. Zack Phelps, who had been appointed executor of the will, immediately filed a petition asking that this posthumous heir he included among the defendants in the suit to break the will. Yesterlay, Laura Gore, a legate under the will filed an answer and cross petition in Law and Equity Court for. Phelps petition. The answer is a very wordy and long-drawn-out document. It is gist is a denial that Mrs. Frohman has ever given birth to a legitimate child by her deceased with the decease of husband. It also states that the two had not lived together as man and wife for more than ten months previous to the birth of the child, and declare, in addition, that Soloman Frohman was imported a year before his death. The petition concludes by asking that the will be dismissed. Altogether this is a remarkable case.
